Student Comments

What did you find MOST helpful about David Miller's teaching approach and course content?

Comments
I liked his use of PowerPoint and class discussions. I enjoyed breaking into small groups and doing group work, it helped me engage more.
There was flexibility on when to complete some article briefs, opportunity to present in class.
I loved the presentations at the beginning of class discussion what the President is currently up to, and his relation to current events to the course. I think I gained a ton of knowledge on political science research and how to read political science articles. His topics and readings were very interesting. I liked his article outline assignments and the class projects as well. I felt like I got a lot out of the class.

What did you find LEAST helpful about David Miller's teaching approach and course content?

Comments
I liked the simulation that we did at the end of the semester. If we completed more activities like that throughout the entire semester or maybe for a midterm, that would have been nice. We did a lot of reading and not a lot of activities.
Sometimes, it felt like it was a lot of assignments, but I understand why the class is set up the way it is.
I wished there were more lectures to spark conversations during the article discussion. Also, I wished the class discussions article summaries had more structure, a time limit, also visual aid component to be more engaging for the others who are not going that day.
His class content being led by a group of students every class didn't seem to be the most engaging or interesting class model.
